NEW QUESTION: 1A. Option DB. Option CC. Option AD. Option BAnswer: C

NEW QUESTION: 2You are documenting the requirements attribute for your requirements management plan. Which attribute would you use if you want to identify the person who created the requirements?A. Absolute referenceB. OwnershipC. Requirements sponsorD. Author of the requirements*Answer: D*Explanation:ExplanationThe author of the requirements is a good attribute to include in the requirements attribute. This allows follow-up questions or clarifications, if necessary, for the project.Answer A is incorrect. Absolute reference is needed to define specific requirements. A numeric coding is preferred over text and this code should not be reused.Answer B is incorrect. The ownership attribute describes who will be the owner of the requirement or deliverable. The owner isn't necessarily the same person who created the requirement.Answer C is incorrect. There is not an attribute called requirements sponsor, so this choice is not valid.

NEW QUESTION: 3Your network contains a domain controller named DC1 that runs Windows Server 2012 R2. You create a custom Data Collector Set (DCS) named DCS1. You need to configure DCS1 to collect the following information:- The amount of Active Directory data replicated between DC1 and the other domain controllers- The current values of several registry settingsWhich two should you configure in DCS1? (Each correct answer presents part of the solution. Choose two.)A. Event trace dataB. A Performance Counter AlertC. System configuration informationD. A performance counter*Answer: B,C*Explanation:Automatically run a program when the amount of total free disk space on Server1 drops below 10 percent of capacity. You can also configure alerts to start applications and performance logsLog the current values of several registry settings. System configuration information allows you to record the state of, and changes to, registry keys. Total free disk spaceRegistry settingsRun a program on alert Reference: <http://technet.microsoft.com/en-us/library/cc766404.aspx>

NEW QUESTION: 4Pete, the security administrator, has been notified by the IDS that the company website is under attack. Analysis of the web logs show the following string, indicating a user is trying to post a comment on the public bulletin board.INSERT INTO message `<script>source=http://evilsite</script>` This is an example of which of the following?A. Buffer overflow attackB. XML injection attackC. SQL injection attackD. XSS attack*Answer: D*Explanation:The <script> </script> tags indicate that script is being inserted. Cross-site scripting (XSS) is a type of computer security vulnerability typically found in Web applications. XSS enables attackers to inject client-side script into Web pages viewed by other users. Cross-site scripting uses known vulnerabilities in web-based applications, their servers, or plug-in systems on which they rely. Exploiting one of these, attackers fold malicious content into the content being delivered from the compromised site. When the resulting combined content arrives at the client-side web browser, it has all been delivered from the trusted source, and thus operates under the permissions granted to that system. By finding ways of injecting malicious scripts into web pages, an attacker can gain elevated access- privileges to sensitive page content, session cookies, and a variety of other information maintained by the browser on behalf of the user.
