NEW QUESTION: 1Which option describes a benefit of using a Balanced Scorecard approach to performance measurement?A. Allows management to focus their full attention on one outcome at a timeB. Combines qualitative and quantitative metrics to give a well-rounded view of the performance of a projectC. Indicates the financial return on investment for a projectD. Allows project managers to detect and mitigate problems as they ariseAnswer: B

NEW QUESTION: 2Examine the parameter setting in your database:Which statement is correct about the database?A. The database is opened but users cannot perform transactions until PGA_AGGREGATE_TARGET and SGA_TARGET are setB. Automatic memory management is enabled and, as per policy, 60% of the memory for System Global Area (SGA) and 40% of the memory for Program Global Area (PGA) will be distributed at startupC. The instance is started but the database will not be opened until PGA_AGGREGATE_TARGET and SGA_TARGET are set

D. Automatic memory management is disabled because PGA_AGGREGATE_TARGET and SGA_TARGET are not set
Answer: B
Explanation: Not sure about the policy stuff, but it's the default behavior when memory_target and memory_max_target are set, sga_max_target is always set automatically to the same value as memory_max_target

http://download.oracle.com/docs/cd/B14117\_01/server.101/b10752/memory.htm#47750
Configuring Automatic PGA Memory
When configuring a brand new instance, it is hard to know precisely the appropriate setting for PGA_AGGREGATE_TARGET. You can determine this setting in three stages: Make a first estimate for PGA_AGGREGATE_TARGET, based on a rule of thumb. By default, Oracle uses 20% of the SGA size. However, this initial setting may be too low for a large DSS system. Run a representative workload on the instance and monitor performance, using PGA statistics collected by Oracle, to see whether the maximum PGA size is under-configured or over-configured. Tune PGA_AGGREGATE_TARGET, using Oracle PGA advice statistics.

HOTSPOT
You administer Office 365 for a company. You implement Microsoft Exchange Online Protection. You identify the following requirements for the antimalware policy: Block attachments with certain file extensions. Allow a message to be delivered while an unknown attachment is scanned. Prevent users from clicking an unsafe URL that is contained in a message. You need to configure Exchange Online Protection. Which settings or policies should you configure? To answer, select the appropriate options in the answer area.
NOTE: Each correct selection is worth one point.
Answer: Explanation:
Box 1: Safe attachments policy
The ATP Safe Attachments feature checks to see if email attachments are malicious, and then takes action to protect your organization.
Box 2: Safe attachments policy
When you set up ATP Safe Attachments policies in Office 365, you can choose from several options, such as Block, Replace, and Dynamic Delivery. The dynamic delivery option eliminates email delays by sending the body of an email message through with a placeholder for each email attachment. The placeholder remains until the attachment is scanned by ATP Safe Attachments in Office 365. Email recipients can read and respond to their email messages right away, knowing that their attachments are being analyzed.
Box 3: Safe Link policy
ATP Safe Links in email
At a high level, here's how ATP Safe Links protection works for URLs in email (hosted in Office 365, not on-premises): People receive email messages that contain URLs. All email goes through Exchange Online Protection, where IP and envelope filters, signature-based malware protection, anti-spam and anti-malware filters are applied. Email arrives in people's inboxes. A user signs in to Office 365, and goes to their email inbox. The user opens an email message, and then clicks on a URL in the email message. The ATP Safe Links feature immediately checks the URL before opening the website. The URL is identified as blocked, malicious, or safe
