NAP uses System HealthAgent (SHA) to check if the specified system health requirements are fulfilled. The SHA can verify whether the Windows Firewall is on; antivirus and antispyware software are installed, enabled, and updated; Microsoft Update Services is enabled, and the most recent security updates are installed.If the system is not in the required state, the SHA can then start a process to remedy the situation. For example, it can enable Windows Firewall or contact a remediation server to update the antivirus signaturesReference: Windows Server 2008 NAP (Network Access Protection) infrastructure
