You want to use CoS-based forwarding to use the DSCP values of the different types of traffic to assign the LSP that should be used for the next hop.Which three additions must be made to the configuration to satisfy the requirement?(Choose three.)A. an export policy applied to the forwarding tableB. a policy statement for LSP next-hop selectionC. a class-of-service forwarding policyD. an important policy applied to the forwarding tableE. a multifield firewall filter for LSP next-hop selection

This configuration instructs the routing process to insert routes to the forwarding engine matching my-cos-forwarding with the associated next-hop CBF rules.A: Assigning Forwarding Class and DSCP Value for Routing Engine-Generated Traffic You can set the forwarding class and differentiated service code point (DSCP) value for traffic originating in the Routing Engine. To configure forwarding class and DSCP values that apply to Routing Engine-generated traffic only, apply an output filter to the loopback (lo.0) interface and set the appropriate forwarding class and DSCP bit configuration for various protocols.E: The following example assigns Routing Engine sourced ping packets (using ICMP) a DSCP value of 38 and a forwarding class of af17, OSPF packets a DSCP value of 12 and a forwarding class of af11, and BGP packets (using TCP) a DSCP value of 10 and a forwarding class of af16.
