A. A maintenance hook
B. A protection domain
C. A covert channel
D. A trusted path
Answer: C
Explanation: A covert channel is an unintended communication path within a system, therefore it is not protected by the system's normal security mechanisms. Covert channels are a secret way to convey information. Covert channels are addressed from TCSEC level B2. The following are incorrect answers: A trusted path is the protected channel that allows a user to access the Trusted Computing Base (TCB) without being compromised by other processes or users. A protection domain consists of the execution and memory space assigned to each process. A maintenance hook is a hardware or software mechanism that was installed to permit system maintenance and to bypass the system's security protections.
