NEW QUESTION: 1A financial institution engaged in mortgage lending has embarked on a business process improvement initiative to eliminate the activities that hinder growth to ultimately improve the success rate of its mortgage business. As a benchmark for identification, the institution is keen on improving any business process that has less than a 75% success rate. The institution has appointed a business analyst (BA) to review the business transactions for the processes of origination, payments, and closures, as well as identify opportunities for improvements and recommend solutions. The BA has collected the following information over the last three months pertaining to these business processes: *All the business processes are at their maximum capacity in terms of the current number of transactions. *Each business process has a certain number of rejects and the reasons for rejection include documentation, verification, collateral, and funding. Funding rejects occur when the bank's customers have failed to make payment of their mortgage processing fee or mortgage closure payment. The BA has also recommended the use of documentation checklists as a solution to eliminate the documentation rejects. If an additional recommendation to reduce Verification Rejects by 50% were to be introduced into the mortgage origination process, what is the potential success rate of the mortgage origination process? A. 74% B. 86% C. 83% D. 70% Answer: A

What should the developer do to ensure good data quality and to ensure that data imports, integrations, and searches perform well? Choose 2 answers A. Configure a custom field as Salesforce ID. B. Configure a custom field as external ID. C. Configure a custom field as indexed. D. Configure a custom field as unique. Answer: B,D

NEW QUESTION: 3Which of the following arise every time an application takes a user-supplied data and sends it to a Web browser without first confirming or encoding the content? A. One-click attacks B. Cookies C. XSS flaws D. Injection flaws Answer: C Explanation: Cross Site Scripting vulnerabilities or XSS flaws arise every time an application takes a user-supplied data and sends it to a Web browser without first confirming or encoding the content. A number of times attackers find these flaws in Web applications. XSS flaws allow an attacker to execute a script in the victim's browser, allowing him to take control of user sessions, disfigure Web sites, and possibly launch worms, viruses, malware, etc. to steal and access critical data from the user's database. Answer option A is incorrect. Injection flaws are the vulnerabilities where a foreign agent illegally uses a sub-system. They are the vulnerability holes that can be used to attack a database of web applications. It is the most common technique of attacking a database. Injection occurs when user-supplied data is sent to an interpreter as part of a command or query. The attacker's hostile data tricks the interpreter into executing involuntary commands or changing data. Injection flaws include XSS (HTML Injection) and SQL Injection. Answer option B is incorrect. Cookies are small collections of data stored on a client computer by a web server. By themselves, cookies are not a source of insecurity, but the way they are used can be. Programmers can foolishly store passwords or secret information in a cookie. A browser flaw could permit a site to read another site's cookies. Cookies containing session information could be stolen from a client computer and used by a hacker to hijack the user's logon session. Cookies are used to track a user's activities, and thus can leave a trail of sites users have visited. Users should block third-party cookies. Users should also use a secure browser and apply patches and updates as they become available. Answer option C is incorrect. Cross-site request forgery, also known as one-click attack or session riding, is a type of malicious exploit of a website whereby unauthorized commands are transmitted from a user that the website trusts. Unlike cross-site scripting (XSS), which exploits the trust a user has for a particular site, CSRF exploits the trust that a site has in a user's browser. The attack works by including a link or script in a page that accesses a site to which the user is known to have authenticated.
