NEW QUESTION: 1Your corporate finance department purchased a new non-web-based TCP application tool to run on one of its servers. Certain finance employees need remote access to the software during nonbusiness hours. These employees do not have "admin" privileges to their PCs. What is the correct way to configure the SSL VPN tunnel to allow this application to run?A. Configure the Cisco ASA appliance to download the Cisco AnyConnect SSL VPN Client to the finance employee each time an SSL VPN tunnel is established.B. Configure the plug-in that best fits the application.C. Configure a smart tunnel for the application.D. Configure a "finance tool" VNC bookmark on the employee clientless SSL VPN portal.Answer: C*Explanation: <http://www.cisco.com/en/US/docs/security/asa/asa80/configuration/guide/webvpn.html> A smart tunnel is a connection between a TCP-based application and a private site, using a clientless (browser based) SSL VPN session with the security appliance as the pathway, and the security appliance as a proxy server. You can identify applications to which you want to grant smart tunnel access, and specify the local path to each application. For applications running on Microsoft Windows, you can also require a match of the SHA-1 hash of the checksum as a condition for granting smart tunnel access. Lotus SameTime and Microsoft Outlook Express are examples of applications to which you might want to grant smart tunnel access. Configuring smart tunnels requires one of the following procedures, depending on whether the application is a client or is a web-enabled application:

- *Create one or more smart tunnel lists of the client applications, then assign the list to the group policies or local user policies for whom you want to provide smart tunnel access.
- *Create one or more bookmark list entries that specify the URLs of the web-enabled applications eligible for smart tunnel access, then assign the list to the DAPs, group policies, or local user policies for whom you want to provide smart tunnel access.

You can also list web-enabled applications for which to automate the submission of login credentials in smart tunnel connections over clientless SSL VPN sessions.

Why Smart Tunnels?

Smart tunnel access lets a client TCP-based application use a browser-based VPN connection to connect to a service. It offers the following advantages to users, compared to plug-ins and the legacy technology, port forwarding:

- *Smart tunnel offers better performance than plug-ins.
- *Unlike port forwarding, smart tunnel simplifies the user experience by not requiring the user connection of the local application to the local port.
- *Unlike port forwarding, smart tunnel does not require users to have administrator privileges.

The advantage of a plug-in is that it does not require the client application to be installed on the remote computer.

Smart Tunnel Requirements, Restrictions, and Limitations

The following sections categorize the smart tunnel requirements and limitations.

General Requirements and Limitations

Smart tunnel has the following general requirements and limitations:

- *The remote host originating the smart tunnel must be running a 32-bit version of Microsoft Windows Vista, WindowsXP, or Windows 2000; or Mac OS 10.4 or 10.5.
- *Smart tunnel auto sign-on supports only Microsoft Internet Explorer on Windows.
- *The browser must be enabled with Java, Microsoft ActiveX, or both.
- *Smart tunnel supports only proxies placed between computers running Microsoft Windows and the security appliance. Smart tunnel uses the Internet Explorer configuration (that is, the one intended for system-wide use in Windows). If the remote computer requires a proxy server to reach the security appliance, the URL of the terminating end of the connection must be in the list of URLs excluded from proxy services. If the proxy configuration specifies that traffic destined for the ASA goes through a proxy, all smart tunnel traffic goes through the proxy.

In an HTTP-based remote access scenario, sometimes a subnet does not provide user access to the VPN gateway. In this case, a proxy placed in front of the ASA to route traffic between the web and the end user's location provides web access. However, only VPN users can configure proxies placed in front of the ASA. When doing so, they must make sure these proxies support the CONNECT method. For proxies that require authentication, smart tunnel supports only the basic digest authentication type.

- *When smart tunnel starts, the security appliance by default passes all browser traffic through the VPN session if the browser process is the same. The security appliance also does this if a tunnel-all policy applies. If the user starts another instance of the browser process, it passes all traffic through the VPN session. If the browser process is the same and the security appliance does not provide access to a URL, the user cannot open it. As a workaround, assign a tunnel policy that is not tunnel-all.
- *A stateful failover does not retain smart tunnel connections. Users must reconnect following a failover.
