NEW QUESTION: 1A. Option AB. Option DC. Option BD. Option CAnswer: CExplanation:AWS CloudWatch supports the custom metrics. The user can always capture the custom data and upload the data to CloudWatch using CLI or APIs. When the user data is more random and not generated at regular intervals, there can be a period which has no associated data. The user can either publish the zero (0) value for that period or not publish the data at all. It is recommended that the user should publish zero instead of no value to monitor the health of the application. This is helpful in an alarm as well as in the generation of the sample data count. NEW QUESTION: 2How is the EMC NetWorker multi-tenancy facility option enabled?A. Adding a license to increase the number of managed zonesB. Adding a NetWorker server for each tenant zoneC. Configuring clients to a multi-tenant enabled Data Domain deviceD. Configuring a Restricted Data Zone resource on a NetWorker serverAnswer: D

NEW QUESTION: 3You need to perform the initial deployment of the web application. You must ensure that the application meets the performance requirements. Which file should you modify before you deploy the application?A. the packages configuration file (packages.config)B. the service definition file (.csdef)C. the Global.asax file (.asax)D. the application configuration file (app.config)Answer: BExplanation:Explanation You use cscfg file to define various settings related to your cloud application (in ConfigurationSettings section). Like app.config file, you get to define other things (e.g. number of instances of your cloud application) in the cscfg file. You could change the settings in a cscfg file on the fly using either the portal or Service Management API without having to repackage and redeploy the application. Scenario: After the initial deployment, any changes to the business logic of the Web API must cause minimal downtime to the web application in the production environment.
