NEW QUESTION: 2 The Amazonian wilderness harbors the greatest number of species on this planet and is an irreplaceableresource for present and future generations. Amazonia is crucial for maintaining global climate andgenetic resources, and its forest and rivers provide vital sources of food, building materials,pharmaceuticals, and water needed by wildlife and humanity. The Los Amigos watershed in the state ofMadre de Dios, southeastern Peru, is representative of the pristine lowland moist forest once foundthroughout most of upper Amazonian South America. Threats to tropical forests occur in the form offishing, hunting, gold mining, timber extraction, impending road construction, and slash-and-burnagriculture. The Los Amigos watershed, consisting of 1.6 million hectares (3.95 million acres), still offersthe increasingly scarce opportunity to study rainforest as it was before the disruptive encroachment ofmodern human civilization. Because of its relatively pristine condition and the immediate need to justify itas a conservation zone, this area deserves intensive, long-term projects aimed at botanical training,ecotourism, biological inventory, and information synthesis. On July 24, 2001, the government of Peruand the Amazon Conservation Association signed a contractual agreement creating the first long-termpermanently renewable conservation concession. To our knowledge this is the first such agreement to beimplemented in the world. The conservation concession protects 340,000 acres of old-growth Amazonian forest in the Los Amigos watershed, which is located in southeastern Peru. This watershed protects theeastern flank of Manu National Park and is part of the lowland forest corridor that links it toBahuaja-Sonene National Park. The Los Amigos conservation concession will serve as a mechanism forthe development of a regional center of excellence in natural forest management and biodiversity science.Several major projects are being implemented at the Los Amigos Conservation Area. Louise Emmons isinitiating studies of mammal diversity and ecology in the Los Amigos area. Other projects involve studiesof the diversity of arthropods, amphibians, reptiles, and birds. Robin Foster has conducted botanicalstudies at Los Amigos, resulting in the labeling of hundreds of plant species along two kilometers of trail inupland and lowland forest. Michael Goulding is leading a fisheries and aquatic ecology program, whichaims to document the diversity of fish, their ecologies, and their habitats in the Los Amigos area and theMadre de Dios watershed in general. With support from the Amazon Conservation Association, and incollaboration with U.S. and Peruvian colleagues, the Botany of the Los Amigos project has been initiated.At Los Amigos, we are attempting to develop a system of preservation, sustainability, and scientificresearch; a marriage between various disciplines, from human ecology to economic botany, productmarketing to forest management. The complexity of the ecosystem will best be understood through amultidisciplinary approach, and improved understanding of the complexity will lead to better management.The future of these forests will depend on sustainable management and development of alternativepractices and products that do not require irreversible destruction. The botanical project will provide a foundation of information that is essential to other programs at Los Amigos. By combining botanicalstudies with fisheries and mammology, we will better understand plant/animal interactions. By providingnames, the botanical program will facilitate accurate communication about plants and the animals thatuse them. Included in this scenario are humans, as we will dedicate time to people-plant interactions inorder to learn what plants are used by people in the Los Amigos area, and what plants could potentiallybe used by people. To be informed, we must develop knowledge. To develop knowledge, we must collect,organize, and disseminate information. In this sense, botanical information has conservation value.Before we can use plant-based products from the forest, we must know what species are useful and wemust know their names. We must be able to identify them, to know where they occur in the forest, how many of them exist, how they are pollinated and when they produce fruit (or other useful products). Asidefrom understanding the species as they occur locally at Los Amigos, we must have information about theiroverall distribution in tropical America in order to better understand and manage the distribution, variation,and viability of their genetic diversity. This involves a more complete understanding of the species throughstudies in the field and herbarium. In 4th paragraph, "concession" could be replaced, without changing themeaning, withA. food supply.B. apology.C. grant.D. compromise.E. acknowledgement.Answer: C Explanation:First go back and get the context of the use of this phrase. It refers to land being set aside forconservation use. The only possibility is (A).
