NEW QUESTION: 2View the Exhibit. The Departments form has form level triggers defined as shown in the Exhibit. You have enabled array DML for the Departments block by setting its DML array size to 5 and setting the Primary Key property of Department id to Yes. You set runtime preferences for Forms Builder to use array processing. You want to test that array processing is actually occurring, so, as shown in the Exhibit, the On-Update, On-Delete, and on insert triggers have code that: 1. Displays a message to indicate which trigger is firing for which record? 2. Does the thing (either updates, deletes, or inserts) The other triggers simply display a message, indicating the trigger that is firing. You run the form from Forms Builder, but from the messages, you can tell that array processing is not occurring. What should you change so that array DML gets implemented? A. Use the SYNCHRONIZE built-in after the MESSAGE built-in; otherwise, the message are not displayed until the processing is finished, giving the appearance that array processing is not taking place. B. Set the DML array size to a value of 10 or greater; for array sizes less than 10, array processing is inefficient, and so is not performed. C. Delete the "On-" triggers; these triggers remove default processing, including array processing. D. Set the Enforce Primary Key property of the Department block to Yes; it is not enough to just set the Department_Id to be the primary key. Answer: D
