NEW QUESTION: 1 A company wants to launch a new application using Amazon Route 53, an Application Load Balancer (ALB), and an Amazon EC2 Auto Scaling group. The company is preparing to perform user experience testing and has a limited budget for this phase of the project. Although the company plans to do a load test in the future, it wants to prevent users from load testing at this time because it wants to limit unnecessary EC2 automatic scaling. What should a solutions architect do to minimize costs of the user experience testing?
A. Deploy Amazon Simple Queue Service (Amazon SQS) between the ALB and Auto Scaling group to queue client requests and change the Auto Scaling group maximum size to one.
B. Configure the ALB with an advanced request routing policy to throttle the client connections being sent to the Auto Scaling group.
C. Configure AWS Shield's client request threshold to 100 connections per client.
D. Deploy AWS WAF on the ALB with a rate-based rule configured to limit the number of requests each client can make.
