NEW QUESTION: 1 Which of the following statements are TRUE about SecureXL? I. SecureXL is able to accelerate all connections through the firewall. II. Medium path acceleration will still cause some CPU utilization of CoreXL cores. III. F2F connections represent "forwarded to firewall" connections that are not accelerated and fully processed through the firewall kernel. IV. Packets going through SecureXL must be inspected by the firewall kernel before being accelerated. A. I, II, and III B. III and IV C. I and IV D. II and III Answer: D

NEW QUESTION: 2 Which two GRE features are configured to prevent fragmentation? (Choose two.) A. DF bit Clear B. PMTUD C. IP MTU D. MTU ignore E. TCP MSS F. TCP window size Answer: B, E
Explanation: Explanation The IP protocol was designed for use on a wide variety of transmission links. Although the maximum length of an IP datagram is 65535, most transmission links enforce a smaller maximum packet length limit, called an MTU. The value of the MTU depends on the type of the transmission link. The design of IP accommodates MTU differences since it allows routers to fragment IP datagrams as necessary. The receiving station is responsible for the reassembly of the fragments back into the original full size IP datagram. Fragmentation and Path Maximum Transmission Unit Discovery (PMTUD) is a standardized technique to determine the maximum transmission unit (MTU) size on the network path between two hosts, usually with the goal of . PMTUD was originally intended for routers in IPv4. However, all modern operating systems use it on endpoints. The TCP Maximum Segment Size (TCP MSS) defines the maximum amount of data that a host is willing to accept in a single TCP/IP datagram. This TCP/IP datagram might be fragmented at the IP layer. The MSS value is sent as a TCP header option only in TCP SYN segments. Each side of a TCP connection reports its MSS value to the other side. Contrary to popular belief, the MSS value is not negotiated between hosts. The sending host is required to limit the size of data in a single TCP segment to a value less than or equal to the MSS reported by the receiving host. TCP MSS takes care of fragmentation at the two endpoints of a TCP connection, but it does not handle the case where there is a smaller MTU link in the middle between these two endpoints. PMTUD was developed in order to avoid fragmentation in the path between the endpoints. It is used to dynamically determine the lowest MTU along the path from a packet's source to its destination.
