NEW QUESTION: 1 Overview Application Overview Contoso, Ltd., is the developer of an enterprise resource planning (ERP) application. Contoso is designing a new version of the ERP application. The previous version of the ERP application used SQL Server 2008 R2. The new version will use SQL Server 2014. The ERP application relies on an import process to load supplier data. The import process updates thousands of rows simultaneously, requires exclusive access to the database, and runs daily. You receive several support calls reporting unexpected behavior in the ERP application. After analyzing the calls, you conclude that users made changes directly to the tables in the database. Tables The current database schema contains a table named OrderDetails. The OrderDetails table contains information about the items sold for each purchase order. OrderDetails stores the product ID, quantities, and discounts applied to each product in a purchase order. The product price is stored in a table named Products. The Products table was defined by using the SQL_Latin1_General_CP1_CI_AS collation. A column named ProductName was created by using the varchar data type. The database contains a table named Orders. Orders contains all of the purchase orders from the last 12 months. Purchase orders that are older than 12 months are stored in a table named OrdersOld. The previous version of the ERP application relied on table-level security. Stored Procedures The current version of the database contains stored procedures that change two tables. The following shows the relevant portions of the two stored procedures: Customer Problems Installation Issues The current version of the ERP application requires that several SQL Server logins be set up to function correctly. Most customers set up the ERP application in multiple locations and must create logins multiple times. Index Fragmentation Issues Customers discover that clustered indexes often are fragmented. To resolve this issue, the customers defragment the indexes more frequently. All of the tables affected by fragmentation have the following columns that are used as the clustered index key: Backup Issues Customers who have large amounts of historical purchase order data report that backup time is unacceptable. Search Issues Users report that when they search product names, the search results exclude product names that contain accents, unless the search string includes the accent. Missing Data Issues Customers report that when they make a price change in the Products table, they cannot retrieve the price that the item was sold for in previous orders. Query Performance Issues Customers report that query performance degrades very quickly. Additionally, the customers report that users cannot run queries when SQL Server runs maintenance tasks. Import Issues During the monthly import process, database administrators receive many support calls from users who report that they cannot access the supplier data. The database administrators want to reduce the amount of time required to import the data. Design Requirements File Storage Requirements The ERP database stores scanned documents that are larger than 2 MB. These files must only be accessed through the ERP application. File access must have the best possible read and write performance. Data Recovery Requirements If the import process fails, the database must be returned to its prior state immediately. Security Requirements You must provide users with the ability to execute functions within the ERP application, without having direct access to the underlying tables. Concurrency Requirements You must reduce the likelihood of deadlocks occurring when Sales.Prod and Sales.Proc2 execute. You need to recommend a solution that reduces the time it takes to import the supplier data. What should you include in the recommendation? A. Disable Resource Governor. B. Enable instant file initialization. C. Reorganize the indexes. D. Enable Auto Update Statistics. Answer: A Explanation: Explanation- The ERP application relies on an import process to load supplier data. The import process updates thousands of rows simultaneously, requires exclusive access to the database, and runs daily.

NEW QUESTION: 2 You are designing a solution that will ingest data from an Azure IoT Edge device, preprocess the data in Azure Machine Learning, and then move the data to Azure HDInsight for further processing. What should you include in the solution? To answer, select the appropriate options in the answer area. NOTE: Each correct selection is worth one point.

Answer: Explanation: Explanation Box 1: Export Data The Export data to Hive option in the Export Data module in Azure Machine Learning Studio. This option is useful when you are working with very large datasets, and want to save your machine learning experiment data to a Hadoop cluster or HDInsight distributed storage. Box 2: Apache Hive Apache Hive is a data warehouse system for Apache Hadoop. Hive enables data summarization, querying, and analysis of data. Hive queries are written in HiveQL, which is a query language similar to SQL. Box 3: Azure Data Lake Default storage for the HDFS file system of HDInsight clusters can be associated with either an Azure Storage account or an Azure Data Lake Storage. References: <https://docs.microsoft.com/en-us/azure/machine-learning/studio-module-reference/export-to-hive-query> <https://docs.microsoft.com/en-us/azure/hdinsight/hadoop/hdinsight-use-hive>

NEW QUESTION: 3 You are creating a new application and require access to Cloud SQL from VPC instances without public IP addresses. Which two actions should you take? (Choose two.) A. Create a custom static route to allow the traffic to reach the Cloud SQL API. B. Create a private connection to a service producer. C. Enable Private Google Access. D. Activate the Service Networking API in your project. E. Activate the Cloud Datastore API in your project. Answer: B, C Explanation:

https://cloud.google.com/sql/docs/mysql/configure-private-services-access#console_1 C: If you are using private IP for any of your Cloud SQL instances, you only need to configure private services access one time for every Google Cloud project that has or needs to connect to a Cloud SQL instance. If your Google Cloud project has a Cloud SQL instance, you can either configure it yourself or let Cloud SQL do it for you to use private IP. Cloud SQL configures private services access for you when all the conditions below are true:

https://cloud.google.com/sql/docs/postgres/configure-private-services-access#before_you_begin E: You can enable Private Google access on a subnet level and any VMs on that subnet can access Google APIs by using their internal IP address.
