NEW QUESTION: 1 A storage administrator is required to test a new version of an application loaded on a secondary host. The administrator must use existing data contained on a LUN provisioned from Unity to a primary host. Which solution will meet the requirement and provide space efficiency?
A. Create a snapshot of the LUN. Configure LUN access for the secondary host. Attach the snapshot to the secondary host.
B. Create a Synchronous Replication session for the LUN. Configure access to the replica LUN for the secondary host. Attach the secondary host.
C. Create an Asynchronous Replication session for the LUN. Configure access to the replica LUN for the secondary host. Attach the secondary host.
D. Create a snapshot of the LUN. Configure snapshot access to the LUN for the secondary host. Attach the snapshot to the secondary host.
Answer: D
Explanation: Attaching a snapshot is only applicable for block snapshots, and makes the snapshot available for host IO. A host must have Snapshot access or LUN and Snapshot access configured in order to access the snapshot. When a snapshot is attached, Unisphere provides the option to create a copy of the snapshot in case the administrator wants to preserve the current snapshot view for future use.

NEW QUESTION: 2 You are working with a table that has an XML column that contains information about books. Each book may have an associated price. You need to write a query that returns each author on a separate row in XML format. Which XML method should you use?
A. Value()
B. Exist()
C. Query()
D. Nodes()
Answer: D
Explanation: The nodes() method is useful when you want to shred an xml data type instance into relational data. It allows you to identify nodes that will be mapped into a new row. The result of the nodes() method is a rowset that contains logical copies of the original XML instances. In these logical copies, the context node of every row instance is set to one of the nodes identified with the query expression, so that subsequent queries can navigate relative to these context nodes.
Incorrect Answers:
A: The Value() method performs an XQuery against the XML and returns a value of SQL type. This method returns a scalar value.
C: The Query() method specifies an XQuery against an instance of the xml data type. The result is of xml type. The method returns an instance of untyped XML.
D: The Exists() method returns a bit that represents one of the following conditions:
1, representing True, if the XQuery expression in a query returns a nonempty result. That is, it returns at least one XML node.
0, representing False, if it returns an
