Answer: B

NEW QUESTION: 2 What message does the TACACS+ daemon send during the AAA authentication process to request additional authentication information?
A. REJECT
B. ERROR
C. CONTINUED
D. ACCEPT
E. REPLY
Answer: C
Explanation: TACACS+ defines 7 type of packets (or "messages"):
Authentication START (It describes the type of authentication to be performed, and may contain the username and some authentication data. The START packet is only ever sent as the first message in a TACACS+ authentication session.)
Authentication REPLY (It indicates whether the authentication is finished, or whether it should continue. If the REPLY indicates that authentication should continue, then it will also indicate what new information is requested.)
Authentication CONTINUE (It is sent from the NAS to the server following the receipt of a REPLY packet and possibly contains requested information.)
Authorization REQUEST (It contains a fixed set of fields that describe the authenticity of the user or process, and a variable set of arguments that describes the services and options for which authorization is requested.).Authorization RESPONSE (It contains a variable set of response arguments (attribute-value pairs) which can restrict or modify the client actions.).Accounting REQUEST (It conveys information used to provide accounting for a service provided to a user.).Accounting REPLY (It is used to indicate that the accounting function on the server has completed and securely committed the record.).
