NEW QUESTION: 3 Which of the following are the reasons for implementing firewall in any network?
A. Log system activity
B. Limit network host exposure
C. Limit access control
D. Log Internet activity
E. Implementing security policy
F. Create a choke point
Answer: B,D,E,F
Explanation: Explanation/Reference: Explanation: A firewall is a part of a computer system or network that is designed to block unauthorized access while permitting authorized communications. It is a device or set of devices configured to permit, deny, encrypt, decrypt, or proxy all computer traffic between different security domains based upon a set of rules and other criteria. The four important roles of a firewall are as follows:
1. Implement security policy: A firewall is a first step in implementing security policies of an organization. Different policies are directly implemented at the firewall. A firewall can also work with network routers to implement Types-Of-Service (ToS) policies.
2. Creating a choke point: A firewall can create a choke point between a private network of an organization and a public network. With the help of a choke point the firewall devices can monitor, filter, and verify all inbound and outbound traffic.
3. Logging Internet activity: A firewall also enforces logging of the errors and faults. It also provides alarming mechanism to the network.
4. Limiting network host exposure: A firewall can create a perimeter around the network to protect it from the Internet. It increases the security by hiding internal information.
