NEW QUESTION: 2 The following two passages deal with the political movements working for the woman's vote in America.The first organized assertion of woman's rights in the United States was made at the Seneca Fallsconvention in 1848. The convention, though, had little immediate impact because of the national issuesthat would soon embroil the country. The contentious debates involving slavery and state's rights thatpreceded the Civil War soon took center stage in national debates.Thus woman's rights issues would have to wait until the war and its antecedent problems had beenaddressed before they would be addressed. In 1869, two organizations were formed that would playimportant roles in securing the woman's right to vote. The first was the American Woman's SuffrageAssociation (AWSA). Leaving federal and constitutional issues aside, the AWSA focused their attentionon state-level politics. They also restricted their ambitions to securing the woman's vote and downplayeddiscussion of women's full equality. Taking a different track, the National Woman's Suffrage Association(NWSA), led by Elizabeth Stanton and Susan B. Anthony, believed that the only way to assure the long-term security of the woman's vote was to ground it in the constitution. The NWSA challenged the exclusion of woman from the Fifteenth Amendment, the amendment that extended the vote to African-American men. Furthermore, the NWSA linked the fight for suffrage with other inequalities facedby woman, such as marriage laws, which greatly disadvantaged women. By the late 1880s the differencesthat separated the two organizations had receded in importance as the women's movement had becomea substantial and broad-based political force in the country. In 1890, the two organizations joined forcesunder the title of the National American Woman's Suffrage Association (NAWSA). The NAWSA would goon to play a vital role in the further fight to achieve the woman's vote.In 1920, when Tennessee became the thirty-eighth state to approve the constitutional amendmentsecuring the woman's right to vote, woman's suffrage became enshrined in the constitution. But woman'ssuffrage did not happen in one fell swoop. The success of the woman's suffrage movement was the storyof a number of partial victories that led to the explicit endorsement of the woman's right to vote in theconstitution.As early as the 1870s and 1880s, women had begun to win the right to vote in local affairs such as municipal elections, school board elections, or prohibition measures. These "partial suffrages" demonstrated that women could in fact responsibly and reasonably participate in a representativedemocracy (at least as voters). Once such successes were achieved and maintained over a period oftime, restricting the full voting rights of woman became more and more suspect. If women were helpingdecide who was on the local school board, why should they not also have a voice in deciding who waspresident of the country? Such questions became more difficult for non-suffragists to answer, and thus thelogic of restricting the woman's vote began to crumbleAccording to the first passage, the National Woman's Suffrage Association focused their efforts onA. local elections.B. constitutional issues.C. state elections.D. school board elections.E. prohibition efforts.Answer: BExplanation:Explanation/Reference: Here it is best to go back to the passage and clarify in your own mind the distinctions drawn between theNWSA and the AWSA. The NWSA, which the question asks about, focused their efforts on federal andconstitutional issues, whereas the AWSA focused on state-level issues.So B.is the correct answer.
