NEW QUESTION: 1 Refer to the exhibit. An admin has created a new EPG in an ACI fabric. The admin then specified static path binding as shown in exhibit. After submitting this policy configuration, the admin noticed that this newly created EPG had the fault shown in the exhibit. Which option is the likely explanation of this fault?
A. The admin incorrectly configured this static path to have a deployment immediately as "Immediate" when it should have been configured as "on-demand".
B. There is not enough information to determine the cause of the problem.
C. There is no fault. The fault is currently in the soaking state and the fault will automatically clear and everything will work as expected.
D. The encap VLAN configured is not within the allowed range of VLANs as specified by the associated domain.
E. The admin incorrectly configured this static path as a "trunk" when it should have been configured as an access (untagged) port.
Answer: D Explanation: Explanation/Reference: Explanation:

NEW QUESTION: 2 L1 ISIS adjacency is up between two routers (Node-1 and Node-2) with MD5 authentication configured. During a maintenance window, an operator was planning to change one of the ISIS hello authentication key from admin to admin123. After removing the hello authentication key from Node-1 (no change on Node-2 side), the ISIS adjacency stayed up. The operator decided to fall back to the original configuration and called Alcatel for support. Which of the following statement best describe the cause of the problem? Select one answer only.
A. The ISIS authentication key is the same as the hello authentication key, therefore removing hello authentication key does not impact the adjacency
B. The system interface is missing from the ISIS configuration, therefore ISIS is not working properly even before the change
C. ISIS hello authentication key is only used for hello packet exchange. It does not affect ISIS adjacency
D. The ISIS hello authentication key was not configured properly in the first place, that's why removing the authentication key does not impact the adjacency
E. ISIS hello authentication key is not used to bring up ISIS adjacency when traffic-engineering is enabled on the routers
Answer: A

NEW QUESTION: 3 Scenario Please read this scenario prior to answering the question You have been assigned the role of Lead Enterprise Architect for a firm that produces components and replacement parts for the automobile, electronics, and telecommunications industries. The firm has been established for over 70 years. North America has been the primary market for its products, with just 20% of its output being exported to Europe. The firm is planning to expand its exports to Europe and also to establish sales in South America and the Asia Pacific region.

The firm is organized into business units that each focus on the different industry sectors. Each business unit has acquired other producers to expand its manufacturing capacity. This has resulted in a complex environment with a high diversity of business and manufacturing systems. The Enterprise Architecture (EA) program within the firm has been functioning for several years. It has made significant progress in consolidating the technology portfolio and establishing key standards. The CIO and the COO are joint sponsors of the EA program. The EA program is mature, with an active Architecture Board and a well-defined architecture process and standard content templates based on the TOGAF 9 Architecture Content Framework. The EA process framework is well coordinated with the PMO, Systems Development, and Operations functions. The firm has completed a strategic plan to reorganize its Sales & Marketing organization according to the target geographic markets. One of the goals of this reorganization is to improve the ability of Marketing to collect more meaningful market analytics that will enable each sector to better address market needs with effective marketing campaigns and global product presence. A Request for Architecture Work to address the goals of the reorganization has been approved. As the architecture team commences its work, the CIO has expressed concerns about whether the firm will be able to adapt to the proposed change and how to manage the associated risks. Refer to the Scenario You have been asked how to address the concerns of the CIO. Based on TOGAF, which of the following is the best answer?

A. In Phase A, the team should conduct a Business Scenario to identify the stakeholders' concerns and the resulting requirements. Once the requirements have been identified, they can be assessed in terms of their risks. The risks should be evaluated in terms of how they could be avoided, transferred, or mitigated. Any risks that cannot be resolved should be identified as residual risks and their disposition should be decided by the Architecture Board.

B. In Phase A, the team should analyze their risk by completing an Implementation Factor Assessment and Deduction Matrix to identify the particular risks associated with the implementation and deployment. The matrix should include a list of factors to be considered, their descriptions, and constraints that should be taken into account. These factors can then be used to assess the initial risks associated with the proposed project.

C. In Phase A, the team should use the Business Transformation Readiness Assessment technique to identify the factors that will influence the reorganization. The assessment should include determining the readiness rating for each factor based on a maturity scale that will allow the team to gauge the urgency, readiness, and degree of difficulty to fix. These factors can then be used to assess the initial risks associated with the proposed project.

D. In Phase B, the team should create a set of views that will enable them to identify the factors that will influence the reorganization. There should then be an assessment of each factor on a maturity scale that will allow the team to gauge the urgency, readiness, and degree of difficulty to fix. These factors can then be used to assess the initial risks associated with the proposed project.
