Previously, you had to use Label Distribution Protocol (LDP) to carry the labels and an Internal Gateway Protocol (IGP) to carry the routes between PE and CE routers to achieve the same goal.The benefits of using BGP to distribute IPv4 routes and MPLS label routes are:BGP takes the place of an IGP and LDP in a Virtual Private Network (VPN) forwarding/routing instance (VRF) table. You can use BGP to distribute routes and MPLS labels. Using a single protocol instead of two simplifies the configuration and troubleshooting.BGP is the preferred routing protocol for connecting two Internet service providers (ISPs), mainly because of its routing policies and ability to scale. ISPs commonly use BGP between two providers.This feature enables those ISPs to use BGP.
