NEW QUESTION: 1Your network consists of a single Active Directory domain. All domain controllers run Windows Server 2008 R2.You need to identify the Lightweight Directory Access Protocol (LDAP) clients that are using the largest amount of available CPU resources on a domain controller.What should you do?A. Run the Active Directory Diagnostics Data Collector Set. Review the Active Directory Diagnostics report.B. Review performance data in Resource Monitor.C. Run the LAN Diagnostics Data Collector Set. Review the LAN Diagnostics report.D. Review the Hardware Events log in the Event Viewer.Answer: AExplanation:
<http://servergeeks.wordpress.com/2012/12/31/active-directory-diagnostics/> Active Directory Diagnostics Prior to Windows Server 2008, troubleshooting Active Directory performance issues often required the installation of SPA. SPA is helpful because the Active Directory data set collects performance data and it generates XML based diagnostic reports that make analyzing AD performance issues easier by identifying the IP addresses of the highest volume callers and the type of network traffic that is placing the most loads on the CPU. Download SPA tool: <http://www.microsoft.com/en-us/download/details.aspx?id=15506> Now the same functionality has been built into Windows Server 2008 and Windows Server 2008 R2 and you don't have to install SPA anymore. This performance feature is located in the Server Manager snap-in under the Diagnostics node and when the Active Directory Domain Services Role is installed the Active Directory Diagnostics data collector set is automatically created under System as shown here. C:Documents and Settingsusernwz1Desktop1.PNGWhen you will check the properties of the collector you will notice that the data is stored under %systemdrive %perflogs, only now it is under the ADDS folder and when a data collection is run it creates a new subfolder called YYYYMMDD-#### where YYYY = Year, MM = Month and DD=Day and #### starts with 0001 . Active Directory Diagnostics data collector set runs for a default of 5 minutes. This duration period cannot be modified for the built-in collector. However, the collection can be stopped manually by clicking the Stop button or from the command line.C:Documents and Settingsusernwz1Desktop1.PNGTo start the data collector set, you just have to right click on Active Directory Diagnostics data collector set and select Start. Data will be stored at %systemdrive%perflogs location.C:Documents and Settingsusernwz1Desktop1.PNGOnce you've gathered your data, you will have these interesting and useful reports under Report section, to aid in your troubleshooting and server performance trending.C:Documents and Settingsusernwz1Desktop1.PNGFurther information:
