NEW QUESTION: 1When configuring SSL VPN on the Cisco ASA appliance, which configuration step is required only for Cisco AnyConnect full tunnel SSL VPN access and not required for clientless SSL VPN?A. group policyB. connection profileC. user authenticationD. IP address poolE. SSL VPN interfaceAnswer: DExplanation:

http://www.cisco.com/en/US/docs/ios-xml/ios/sec_conn_sslvpn/configuration/15-2mt/secconn-sslvpnssl-vpn.htmlCisco AnyConnect VPN Client Full Tunnel Support Remote Client Software from the SSL VPN Gateway Address Pool Manual Entry to the IP Forwarding Table Remote Client Software from the SSL VPN Gateway The Cisco AnyConnect VPN Client software package is pushed from the SSL VPN gateway to remote clients when support is needed. The remote user (PC or device) must have either the Java Runtime Environment for Windows (version 1.4 later), or the browser must support or be configured to permit Active X controls. In either scenario, the remote user must have local administrative privileges.Address Pool The address pool is first defined with the ip local pool command in global configuration mode. The standard configuration assumes that the IP addresses in the pool are reachable from a directly connected network.Address Pools for Nondirectly Connected Networks If you need to configure an address pool for IP addresses from a network that is not directly connected, perform the following steps: Create a local loopback interface and configure it with an IP address and subnet mask from the address pool. Configure the address pool with the ip local pool command. The range of addresses must fall under the subnet mask configured in Step 1. Set up the route. If you are using the Routing Information Protocol (RIP), configure the router rip command and then the network command, as usual, to specify a list of networks for the RIP process. If you are using the Open Shortest Path First (OSPF) protocol, configure the ip ospf network point-to-point command in the loopback interface. As a third choice (instead of using the RIP or OSPF protocol), you can set up static routes to the network. Configure the svc address-pool command with the name configured in Step 2.Manual Entry to the IP Forwarding Table If the SSL VPN software client is unable to update the IP forwarding table on the PC of the remote user, the following error message will be displayed in the router console or syslog: Error : SSL VPN client was unable to Modify the IP forwarding table This error can occur if the remote client does not have a default route. You can work around this error by performing the following steps: Open a command prompt (DOS shell) on the remote client. Enter the route print command. If a default route is not displayed in the output, enter the route command followed by the add and mask keywords. Include the default gateway IP address at the end of the route statement. See
