NEW QUESTION: 1Your network contains two servers named Server1 and Server2. The network contains a Storage Area Network (SAN). Server1 and Server2 each connect to two logical unit numbers (LUNs) on the SAN.You create a failover cluster named Cluster1. Server1 and Server2 are nodes in Cluster1. One of the LUNs is used as a witness disk.You plan to create 10 virtual machine (VM) instances in Cluster1. You need to ensure that each VM instance can be moved between nodes independently of the other VMs.How should you configure Cluster1?A. Create a clustered Microsoft Distributed Transaction Coordinator (MSDTC) resource.B. Create a clustered Generic Service instance.C. Modify the quorum configuration.D. Enable cluster shared volumes.Answer: D*Explanation:Storage: You must use shared storage that is compatible with Windows Server 2008 R2. A feature of failover clusters called Cluster Shared Volumes is specifically designed to enhance the availability and manageability of virtual machines. Cluster Shared Volumes are volumes in a failover cluster that multiple nodes can read from and write to at the same time. This feature enables multiple nodes to concurrently access a single shared volume. The Cluster Shared Volumes feature is only supported for use with Hyper-V and other technologies specified by Microsoft. On a failover cluster that uses Cluster Shared Volumes, multiple clustered virtual machines that are distributed across multiple cluster nodes can all access their Virtual Hard Disk (VHD) files at the same time, even if the VHD files are on a single disk (LUN) in the storage. This means that the clustered virtual machines can fail over independently of one another, even if they use only a single LUN. When Cluster Shared Volumes is not enabled, a single disk (LUN) can only be accessed by a single node at a time. This means that clustered virtual machines can only fail over independently if each virtual machine has its own LUN, which makes the management of LUNs and clustered virtual machines more difficult. For a two-node failover cluster, the storage should contain at least two separate volumes (LUNs), configured at the hardware level. Do not expose the clustered volumes to servers that are not in the cluster. One volume will function as the witness disk (described later in this section). One volume will contain the files that are being shared between the cluster nodes. This volume serves as the shared storage on which you will create the virtual machine and the virtual hard disk. To complete the steps as described in this document, you only need to expose one volume. For Cluster Shared Volumes, there are no special requirements other than the requirement for NTFS. For the partition style of the disk, you can use either master boot record (MBR) or GUID partition table (GPT).Source: <http://technet.microsoft.com/en-us/library/cc732181.aspx>

NEW QUESTION: 2A corporate network includes a single Active Directory Domain Services (AD DS) domain.All regular user accounts reside in an organizational unit (OU) named Employees. All administrator accounts reside in an OU named Admins.You need to ensure that any time an administrator modifies an employee's name in AD DS, the change is audited.What should you do first?A. Enable the Audit directory service access setting in the Default Domain Controllers Policy Group Policy Object.B. Use the Auditpol.exe command-line tool to enable the directory services access auditing subcategory.C. Create a Group Policy Object with the Audit directory service access setting enabled and link it to the Employees OU.D. Enable the Audit directory service access setting in the Default Domain Policy Group Policy Object.Answer: B*Explanation: Before we can use the Directory Service Changes audit policy subcategory, we have to enable it first. We can do that by using auditpol.exe.Reference:

<http://technet.microsoft.com/en-us/library/cc731607.aspx>Auditing changes to objects in AD DS In Windows 2000 Server and Windows Server 2003, there was one audit policy, Auditdirectory service access, that controlled whether auditing for directory service events was enabled or disabled. In Windows Server 2008, this policy is divided into four subcategories:Directory Service AccessDirectory Service ChangesDirectory Service ReplicationDetailed Directory Service ReplicationThe ability to audit changes to objects in AD DS is enabled with the new audit policysubcategory Directory Service Changes. This guide provides instructions for implementingthis audit policy subcategory.The types of changes that you can audit include a user (or any security principal) creating, modifying, moving, or undeleting an object. The new audit policy subcategory adds the following capabilities to auditing in AD DS:When a successful modify operation is performed on an attribute, AD DS logs the previous and current values of the attribute. If the attribute has more than one value, only the values that change as a result of the modify operation are logged.(...)Steps to set up auditingThis section includes procedures for each of the primary steps for enabling changeauditing:Step 1: Enable audit policy.Step 2: Set up auditing in object SACLs by using Active Directory Users and Computers. Step 1: Enable audit policy.This step includes procedures to enable change auditing with either the Windows interface or a command line:(...)By using the Auditpol command-line tool, you can enable individual subcategories. To enable the change auditing policy using a command line1.Click Start, right-click Command Prompt, and then click Run as administrator.2.Type the following command, and then press ENTER:auditpol /set /subcategory:"directory service changes" /success:enable
